IN THIS ISSUE

1980 IN RETROSPECT

1980, in conjunction with previous years, has shown the price which the Anglo-Celto-Saxon and Kindred People continue to pay for national blindness. The deepening political and religious confusion is a tangible demonstration of the continuing validity of the Law of the Lord for as year passes year, this company of nations is following the precise course as outlined by Moses when he warned Israel of the penalty for Law transgression. This indeed has been the story of 1980.

This magazine, the official journal of The Federation of the Covenant People, has been published for forty-eight years under its present name and carries what may be called un-denominational Bible Truth which places the emphasis on the Promises and the Acts of God rather than on the speculation and charity of men. It is within these Promises and Acts of the Almighty that this Organisation believes that the West, or more correctly, the Anglo-Celto-Saxon and company of kindred nations, can be assured that the current dismantling of their culture and institutions will not succeed — despite the apparent readiness of both politicians and people to accept this as inevitable.

This assurance derives from the evidence of God in Action — both in Biblical and comparatively recent history — in which one may know, without any reservations, that God is no figment of the imagination, but a real, tangible Power Who is very concerned with the world in which men live and Who has affixed the Honour of His Name to a Plan for world reconstruction. It is within this Honour that Anglo-Saxondom's assurance of survival lies.

To appreciate the subject of the Honour of God, one must investigate the Promises which God made to the patriarchs — who were certainly not Jews — and note that they were unique in that they depended entirely on God for their fulfilment. When in Egypt and as slaves, Israel did not ask God for deliverance and yet this is precisely what transpired — because His Word of Promise had declared this. Israel in the Promised Land — and there is still no evidence of Jews in the narrative — violated the Divinely given national Constitution and paid the penalty by being evicted from the land. Again, unmasked and because His Honour was involved, the Almighty Redeemed His People thus allowing them to move from the Middle East to North-West Europe where they settled and from where they sent out colonies to take possession of permanent homes from which, according to His Word of Promise, they would not be moved (2nd Sam. 7:10).

Anglo-Saxondom today, blind to its true identity, has allowed itself to become embroiled in the one-world delusion and while all other nations are asserting their identity, this modern company of God's Covenant People are allowing the marks of their identity to disappear beneath the self-destructive accommodation of foreigners who have taken to living among them.

It is against this background that the articles in The Covenant Message are presented. Knowing the magnitude of what is going on, knowing that the full assault of God's enemies is against them, and knowing the dangerous cross-roads which lie ahead, Anglo-Saxondom can also know that God has Promised national survival (Jer. 31:35) and that the gates of hell shall not prevail against His Word.

1980 IN RETROSPECT

'AS IT WAS IN THE DAYS OF NOE.....'

The Secret of Religion

The events of the year 1980 have now been included in that vast volume of human achievement called history and while a question-mark is the only entry for the events of 1981, one is reminded of the words of Voltaire — “The first step, my son, which one makes in the world, is the one on which depends the rest of your days.” While the philosophy of Voltaire was undoubtedly directed toward revolution and while many may see a revolutionary directive in the statement just quoted, the principle embodied in it is demonstrably true. If one thinks of the Anglo-Celto-Saxon and company of kindred nations and particularly their history since their rebirth under what is known as the Reformation, the principle behind Voltaire’s statement is demonstrated in a very tangible and political way.

It is incontestably true that the Reformation resulted in a break with Rome and while it is equally true that the Bible became an open Book, neither of these events can be said to mark a genuine rebirth of the Anglo-Saxon people. The shackles of the politico-religious system of the Papacy had indeed been discarded and while a new-found freedom was an exhilarating experience, the first faltering steps into the future were taken in ignorance of the fact that the leaven of Rome, the ‘leaven of the Pharisees’ — universalism, still dominated. In other words, in their rebirth, Anglo-Saxondom did not accept its own historic identity as the Covenant People of God and over the succeeding four centuries, they have demonstrated the Truth of the words recorded in Proverbs 29:18. “Where there is no vision, the people perish.”

As one looks at the events of 1980, there can be very little doubt that the 'perishing' process has been accelerated just as national vision has been clouded even further by propaganda doctrines which have their origin in the remote past. Powers have been and are at work which are slowly but surely taking their toll in reducing all the families of the earth to the lowest common denominator and while, to a dazed and uncomprehending Anglo-Saxon company of nations there appears to be no alternative to complete submission to the principle of universalism, there is A Power above the powers of darkness Whose Very Name is being jeopardised by all that is transpiring in the world today. The Almighty, the Yahveh of Israel has decreed that His People — no counterfeit or spurious pretender — would emerge from the morass of satanic deceptions and delusions intact and, as a genetically identifiable entity and while this decree is contested by the gods of today who have engendered hopelessness into His People, God's Word assures His Victory.

While many today may view the future developments in the world with extreme pessimism, the 'sure word of prophecy' — an extremely accurate mechanism reflecting God's foreknowledge — reveals that He is fully aware of the threat to both His Word spoken and His Covenant People. For instance, He has stated that "... there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time" (Dan. 12:1) and while some may claim that this is rather ambiguous — and this because of the qualifying phrase 'to that same time' — the statement by Jeremiah, in similar vein, places 'Jacob's trouble' in an unmistakable context (Jer. 30:7). If one looks at the Anglo-Saxon nations today, is not Government legislation concerning race relationships very high on the agenda? In the United Kingdom, in Canada, in the United States, in South Africa, Australia and New Zealand is not the place of the racial alien in relationship to the Whites becoming a dominant one? This is precisely the context of 'Jacob's trouble' as recorded by Jeremiah which, if trouble is taken to consider it, will be seen to be aimed at invalidating God's assurance that 'the seed' — the zera, the genetic principle of racial continuity — of Israel would be a nation before Him forever (Jer. 31:35).

While through His servants the prophets, the Lord continually draws attention to the consequences of Law violation — particularly those relating to relationships with other people — He certainly did not neglect to warn of a politico-religious conspiracy which, far from being an inanimate principle which many would describe as being a war between right and wrong — good and evil, etc., was a malignant organism comprising men who consciously would strive for world dominion. Daniel of course, recorded the vision of this conspiracy in his seventh chapter — which is not the same as the vision given to the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar and recorded in the second chapter of the Book of Daniel. Daniel's vision of the 'beast system' is picked up by the Lord Jesus Christ in His Revelation to John and one finds the required 'two witnesses' (Deut. 19:15) pin-pointing the fact that an incredible mechanism, operating in all facets of life, would be aimed at God's Covenant people. Dr. Scofield in his notes on Revelation 13 and in the context of this 'beast system' has this to say: "This world-system is imposing and powerful with armies and fleets; is often outwardly religious, scientific, cultured, and elegant; but seething with national and commercial rivalries and ambitions, is upheld in any real crisis only by armed force and is dominated by satanic principles." If one looks at this definition of the 'beast system' in operation, there can be absolutely no doubt that in each of the phases mentioned, one has a thrust made against God's Covenant People and because of national blindness to identity, perversions in every facet of life are permitted because the Law of the Lord, Israel's only defence, has been rejected by the people.

The broken Law

Daniel's "beast" as depicted by an artist in 1850. It's enigmatical form adequately describes the identity of the conspiracy of evil today.

The events of 1980 will be seen to fall into the activity of the 'beast system' and as these are considered, there are two features which should be borne in mind and are (1) the Lord has been fully aware of the existence and magnitude of this competing world system and (2) He has assured it will not succeed in thwarting His Covenant-sealed Purpose.

Meanwhile if nothing else, we live in interesting times as a very brief look at some of the world news headlines revealed during 1980:

- S.A. — THREAT TO WORLD PEACE
- WHITHER SOCIALISM?
- WORLD ECONOMIC OUTLOOK GRIM
- AFRICA — THE HUNGRY CONTINENT
- VIOLENCE IN UGANDA
- TRIBAL WAR FEARS IN ZIMBABWE
- S.W.A. — THREAT TO WORLD PEACE
- IRAN — WRECKERS DON'T GIVE UP
- S.A. — THREAT TO WORLD PEACE
- ISLAM'S UNHOLY WAR
- FACE OF ANGRY POLAND
- THE RED VISION
- THE 'PEOPLE' VISION
- S.A. — THREAT TO WORLD PEACE

And so on and so on. Indeed, reviewing the past year of activity especially in Western political circles shows that unquestionably, 1980 was a year not only of political manoeuvring, but of such treachery that those involved must surely be condemned to "... shame and everlasting contempt". Continually heard was — the vibratory sound of political leaders all expressing their own particular brand of what in reality is the same ideology and which has shown their intent on creating a 'New Man'. A creature of no race based on the mythical figure envisaged by such as Karl Marx.

Marx, born in 1818 of Jewish parents who adopted the Protestant religion — no doubt for expediency's sake, should in reality be no yardstick upon which to base any ideology. He had six children, three of whom died of starvation, two committed suicide, while little is known of the remaining one. He indulged in bouts of drinking and at one time, his wife and children, on being left penniless, were evicted from their home. During his life time, few accepted his political outlook for only six people attended his funeral, but significantly, out of this grew the infamous Fabian Society — a small group of English 'intellectuals' — and Lenin's Bolshevik movement.

Greatly influenced by the evolutionist Darwin; the dialectical statistician, Hegel, and the atheistic materialist, Feurbach, Marx was a self-proclaimed 'scientist' who insisted on certain beliefs and teachings which should never be dismissed for, as 1980 has clearly shown, these doctrines have grown and taken root in Western political circles at an alarming rate. And Communism or Socialism is a social disease of not necessarily the working man, but more particularly, of the intellectual who allows himself to believe that by supporting the ideal of brotherhood, equality, peace and prosperity, he will be gaining more power over those whom he actually considers his inferior.

Those who have studied Marx and his ideology with an open mind are not surprised to find that many Communists or Socialists quickly see through the fallacies of Marxism, but continue to act as blind-believers; as conspirators against established order or, for personal reasons. Often it is to seek power and the privilege power gives to a select few for it should never be supposed, in spite of all propaganda to the contrary, that Communism fails to give personal advantage and job security to a favoured few. In practice it is very different to theory.

While Communism advocates a social system based on the common ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange, Socialism is a political and economic principle that the community as a whole should have ownership and control over all means of production and distribution. Both political ideologies, being identical, aim at a society where nothing belongs to the individual but to the State as a whole.

Naturally, both promise Utopia and, although described as a political pursuit of wisdom and knowledge — this is a philosophy which can be seen as nothing less than a deliberate conspiracy to entrap the masses. Indeed Lenin, first head of Communist Russia, confirmed this when in 1902, he stated: "Conspiracy is so essential a condition of an organisation of this kind that all other conditions . . . must be made to conform with it."

In his excellent work None Dare Call It Treason John A. Stormer commented on the basic "scientific" laws which underlie Communism. These include the belief that —

There is no God. When communists deny God, they simultaneously deny every virtue and every value which originates with God.

Communists watch anxiously as their 'comrades' negotiate for the liberty to express their wishes.

A meeting of the Supreme Soviet in the Kremlin's Palace

There are no moral absolutes, no right and wrong. Thus the Ten Commandments and the Sermon On The Mount are invalid.

"Accepting this concept of 'morality', the communists teach that all is right which advances the cause of socialism. All is wrong which impedes its progress. For the communist, to lie, cheat, steal or even murder, is perfectly moral if it advances communism. Conversely, a communist who would refuse to lie, cheat, steal or murder to aid the socialist movement is immoral. In the words of Lenin:

We do not believe in eternal morality — our morality is entirely subordinated to the interests of the class struggle.

"The second 'scientific' law of communism follows the first logically. It is:

Man is simply matter in motion. As such, he is without soul, spirit, or free will and is not responsible for his own acts.

"Marx taught that man was entirely an evolutionary animal, the highest animal form without significant individual value or eternal life. Man is a body completely describable in terms of the laws of chemistry and physics.

"The third 'scientific' law, economic determinism, is to be the means for transforming man. It states:

Man is an economically determined animal. Qualities of human intelligence, personality, emotional and religious life merely reflect man's economic environment. The evil a man does is just a reflection of his environment.

"After coming to this conclusion, Marx taught that the only way man could be improved or changed would be to change or eliminate the evil-producing elements in man's environment. He reasoned that the one common influence in man's life was the economic environment. Mid-19th Century Europe's predominant economic system was a rough-and-tumble combination of feudalism, mercantilism, and free enterprise. Marx called it capitalism and blamed it for all the evil in man and the world. He concluded that the only way to eliminate evil and improve man was to destroy capitalism. Marx taught that this was both desirable and historically inevitable because the continued conflict between the classes had to produce change.

"The inevitable outcome of the class war, according to Marx, was the triumph of the proletariat in a revolution which would destroy a decaying capitalism and replace it with socialism. Under socialism, the dictatorship of the proletariat (Communist Party) would work towards the establishment of communism.

"Marx taught that once the material needs of man were satisfied, greed, profit-taking, avarice, and hate would disappear. The State would wither away. There would be no laws or need for a police force. A heaven on earth would result. Man's nature would be magically transformed. Each would work according to his ability. Each would desire to receive only according to his needs.

"To reach this goal, the proletariat must achieve control of the entire earth. All poisoning traces of capitalism must be eliminated. In practice however, as the communists conquer a country, and if they conquer the world, they are left with those people raised in a capitalist environment. It has formed their character and personality. They will transmit the 'illness' to their children." Such people must be either changed or destroyed!

The Communist theory — for a theory it still remains — thus maintains that man is a material being, a 'body' made up of chemical holding cells which contract, reproduce and discharge electric currents. That man can be controlled — there is no divine spark. That he can be improved and changed for all qualities which he possesses are derived from the experiences of childhood and of course, environment. Thus all that is needed to change 'human nature' is to change 'its' surroundings. To save it from itself which in reality, clearly shows that the Communist or Socialist ideology, is a 'religion' based on the concept of equality for all.

See no evil; hear no evil; speak no evil

Change and Decay

Neither male nor female - just a cog!

In order to understand whether the above thesis is acceptable it becomes necessary to ask whether such a paradise as envisaged by Marx and his followers has in fact evolved in the countries already under Communist control. Here the workers are assured that they are not being exploited by the Capitalists. Whether they actually know that it is the same Capitalists from the Western World who are financing them is hard to say, although it is doubtful whether they are told that it has been Western private enterprise technology which set up their system in the first place and which has sponsored them ever since that time. Possibly there is still the belief that capitalism must be destroyed in the West and that then, all hate, greed and selfishness will finally disappear from the entire world so that all the world's population can come to know true peace. That when this happens their own position will improve. No law will ever be necessary again and certainly there will be no police force as everyone everywhere will become in all truth — the New Man. In other words, it is possible that those under Communist control feel that the sooner the whole 'thing' blows up the sooner they personally will receive the full benefits which they have been promised.

Toward the end of 1979 however, a very interesting study from the Soviet Union came to light which showed the "... state of industry in the Soviet Union and the inability to get the workers to realise the gravity of their sins". The following comment printed in Intelligence Digest Weekly Review is of interest and sounds all too familiar. It proves that it is not only in the West that things are not all that they should be. The report stated: "The economic crisis which is looming can be attributed almost directly to falling productivity, attributable to a large extent to the growing materialism on the part of the industrial workers. The loss of pride in productive work causes not only a decline in output, but the production of low quality goods which cannot find a market. One of the root causes is the condition of permanent welfare in which workers find themselves. This has bred a philosophy of parasitism, a habit of living 'all found' without having to wonder where the family's income comes from. The 'obtaining' of everything is taken for granted. Thus there is no incentive for conscientious labour. The elementary requirements for production discipline is missing, causing a negligent attitude towards the quality of work and an essentially parasitical desire to pass one's share of responsibility for the common cause on to the shoulders of others".

According to this report the Soviet authors were dumbfounded to discover that "... In the West the worker must slave away at his job or starve and see his family starve as well... that there is no such thing as 'you don't have to exert yourself' (because) a certain level of remuneration is guaranteed?" Obviously the authors of the study were dealing with a situation which they regarded with alarm. A growing sickness in Soviet industry, with Soviet industrial workers (and not only the industrial workers) refusing to do a proper day's work and to turn out satisfactory goods. The complaint was made that what is lacking in the workers is "a genuinely communist attitude toward labour" and it was suggested that "what is needed is the skilful combination of material and moral incentives to labour". Also: "There must be an overt struggle against the self-seeking sentiments (of workers) ... and the introduction of a fair distribution of incentives." Further: "Wages must be earned and each worker must be made aware of the direct dependence of his wages upon his own contribution to the collective production successes." Because: "The satisfaction of material needs must not be an end in itself; it must be constantly accompanied by the enhancement of the workers' moral consciousness (toward the rest of society)." In short: "The workers must be guided into a concern for the needs of all people." For: "Without all this no society can become or remain a truly developed society."

It will be recalled that the report comes from a study made on people already under full Communist control and was made by Communists as well. Just where the changed environment situation fits in to this is hard to say for the condition of the masses not being prepared to work — in one case where there supposedly is the correct environment under complete control and in the other, in the West, where they are increasingly coming under Trade Unions — seems to tell the same story. Communism, Socialism, Trade Unionism — call it what you will — does not bring out the best in man and never can and never will for if there is no freedom in the truest sense, no inward drive and determination, no racial pride or genetic ability, then people dissolve into nothing and then in truth, become merely the 'material beings' envisaged by Marx. 'Beings' with no infinite value — simply matter in motion.

During the year there were frequent reports too of unrest in the Soviet Republic of Georgia. According to Intelligence Digest confirmation of this came in the categorical denial that there had been unrest of any kind. The denial was issued by the head of the Georgia KGB, Col. General A. Inauri who stated that all that had happened was that 'under the influence of the West crimes have appeared among us which were previously unknown'. Inauri maintained that: "The frequent reports of serious unrest' in the Soviet recently is limited to an insignificant handful of renegades who believe they can 'with impunity engage in subversive activities against the socialist system'. The reason for their strange belief, was that 'for several years now a provocative ballyhoo has been fanned in the U.S. and other Western countries over the imaginary violation of human rights in the U.S.S.R.' There is no such violation, only vigorous action by the KGB to wipe out 'ideological sabotage centres' which have been set up under Western instigation.

"It is true that stricter political vigilance has become necessary, but the sole reason for this is the need to 'restrict the potential of our class enemies'. But 'very decisive measures are being taken to eradicate such crimes and violations of established law and to strengthen party, state and labour discipline in every possible way'.

"His organisation — the KGB — was very well capable of dealing with the 'various kinds of negative phenomena', but there was something else which is more difficult to detect. This is the influence of 'emissaries of foreign anti-Soviet and Zionist organisations' who turn up as tourists.

"Aided by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and certain foreign journalists who are in fact counter-revolutionary agents, these emissaries are able to seek out 'certain of our republic's unstable citizens' and contrive with them to carry out secret subversive actions. Fortunately, the class enemies, negative phenomena and unstable elements apart, 'the population of our republic is well aware of the situation which has come about and of the need to maintain high political vigilance'. Moreover, the KGB itself 'vigilantly stands guard over the interests of Soviet society and wages a resolute struggle against the actions of imperialist states' special subversive centres'."

From the above it becomes obvious then that in spite of change which Communism has brought to countries under its control — decay has set in with a very similar decay now rampant within Western civilization as well and that this is being deliberately fostered in the West cannot be doubted either as the events of 1980 show all too clearly. As George Orwell described in his novel '1984', life under Communism — and where ever any of its linking ideologies exist — is like a boot stamping on a human face for ever and ever. Which 'boot' is now descending slowly but surely upon the face of the White race in all their lands.

The 'God' of Conspiracy

"I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, I will be like the most High." These words from Isaiah 14 clearly describe the thoughts and plans of Lucifer who has ever been determined on usurping the Authority of the Almighty. Hence those who are his minions "combine illegal forms of struggle with every form of legal struggle". Their power multiplied through infiltration and penetration of existing governments, organisations and groups, for in this way they are able to redirect every vestige of influence, prestige and control for their own benefit.

It should not be supposed that the present conspiracy is a new attack or that it is purely an American or Russian concept for the plans originated many, many years ago. It is true that recent reports, and not only from the pen of George Orwell, state that the final consummation of these plans will be in the year 1984. Indeed, British leaders and the U.S.S.R. have signed Agreements for the takeover of Britain by this date. One Agreement was signed in 1974 by Peter Shore and another in 1975 by Harold Wilson. Both Agreements make provision for the British government to do everything in its power to implement the policies allowed for at the times of signing. It is possible that while the Conservative Party remains in power in Britain, plans may be held up but it must be recognised that, should the Labour Party come to power again and under the leadership of Michael Foot, who has very definite Socialist leanings, events will then move extremely quickly.

A report issued in 1980 claimed that Mr. Foot's main aim will be to save the unity of the Labour Party and that there will therefore be much fudging of issues. Apparently his whole history is one of grand designs and vague plans untroubled with nuts and bolts detail which could divide the Labour Party. As is now known, the British Labour Party has taken a decided step to the Left which is being made irreversible in that control of party policy implementation is passing from the social democrats in the Parliamentary Labour Party (PLP) to the Marxists within the National Executive and the Labour Party Conference. The automatic re-selection of Labour MPs means that the social democrats, who comprise about two-thirds of the PLP, will gradually be replaced by Marxists of various kinds.

Apparently a number of social democrats voted for Mr. Foot because they hoped he could save the party from splitting and perhaps reach a compromise or consensus, but this is unlikely except as a window dressing election exercise. Mr. Foot will soon be 70 and the Marxists are in no mood for too many compromises or delays; "they want 'real socialism' now and they are convinced that the majority of Labour voters do also".

A few hours after left-winger Michael Foot had been elected to the Labour leadership, a group of MPs formed a 'mass picket' in the House of Commons to block the Queen's messenger. Two of those involved stated that they had no faith whatsoever in Parliamentary democracy. The message to militants throughout the country was clear and will not have been missed. The last time this happened was in 1626 during the prelude to the civil war. The current introduction of 'street politics' into Parliament which was condoned by the Labour leadership, could be the — harbinger of a Marxist putsch in Britain.

Mugabe: landslide win

On the other hand, when one considers the treachery also practised by the British Conservative Party as in the case of Rhodesia during 1980 when it willingly handed that country over to Marxist control, the question arises as to whether in fact the Conservative Party is not itself a partner to the plans for enslavement. Nothing in the record of this party over the past few years shows otherwise and which, with regard to the principle of Democracy, is not surprising for as with Socialism and Communism, Democracy is itself a 'religious' concept going back to the days of Sinai. It will be recalled that this was the time when, with Moses on the mount, the people wearied of waiting for his return and consented together to build a molten calf of gold which they would worship. This brought them into line with the other nations for gold then became their 'god' and in their worship they were stripped of all their dignity as human beings just as today all political man-made sciences, strip man of every vestige of pride and dignity too. And tragically, this loss of integrity has persisted down the ages as man continues to search for 'freedom', security and peace, never appreciating where the fanatical worship of the 'golden-calf' has taken him.

In 1950, James Paul Warburg, a member of the powerful Banking clique said: "The past 15 years of my life have been devoted almost exclusively to studying the problem of world peace . . . the great question of our time is not whether or not One World can be achieved, but whether or not One World can be achieved by peaceful means. We shall have World Government whether or not we like it. The question is only whether World Government will be achieved by consent or conquest." Naturally consent is better than conquest as Edward Heath of the British Conservative Party believed in his determination to take Britain into the European Economic Community, thus breaking British ties with not only their own heritage, but with those of their own race throughout the Western World. On Britain entering the E.E.C. the French president of that time, stated that Britain — ". . . must change her identity". And unquestionably, successive British Governments — Conservative and Labour — have been determined on destroying and disarming that country to the point where resistance has been almost completely wiped out.

Several years ago, A.K. Chesterton noted the techniques employed to bring about the subjugation of not only Britain, but all mankind and stated, as have many other observers, that it is not always possible to bring a direct case against an extremely clever conspiracy as distinct from a case based on circumstantial evidence although, when a conspiracy has been active for many, many years, there are bound to be occasions when it reveals its existence. Then it is that these self-exposures have to be used as pointers to an overall plan. What provides the main proof is that, the policy objective having become known. there has to be continuity of the policy pursued to achieve it in one country after another and indeed, in the Western world, the programme of conspiracy has, during 1980 been most clear and at all times it has been a programme of direct opposition to Almighty God based on the belief expounded by the conspiracy that — “There is no God!”

Thus, without a qualm, those who belong to Lucifer have forged ahead and tragically through the apathy, failure and ‘religion’ of true Israel in Anglo-Saxondom, have accomplished much in their determination to gain world control. Not surprisingly Britain — the place where numerically at least true Israel is to be found — has come under attack through not only her entry into the E.E.C., but through continual strikes seeking to paralyse all sea-ports, transport, energy, food and health services. Further plans have also been revealed for riots, racial strife and urban revolutionary activities and for paralysing all major cities. The destruction of British industry, the elimination of Britain’s defences, are all part of these plans which finally, could culminate in an external attack. Nor is this surprising, for as early as 1967, certain well known Christian leaders conducted a “Christian Marxist Dialogue” in London and found “a remarkable parallel between the debate within Christianity and that within Marxism — concerning the agonising problem of how far violence is to be tolerated — may indeed be necessary — to bring about the social revolution, ON THE NECESSITY FOR WHICH ALL WERE AGREED”.

Such planned subversion naturally covers the entire Western structure or civilization too and shows the assault on patriotism, planned rebellion and revolution, betrayal, the enforcement of ‘unity’ among all races and the demoralisation of home-life. Further danger spots are found in education, the press, radio and TV. In organised labour movements, health, economics, internationalism and government itself.

However, it is not nearly enough to simply know or show the various avenues of attack and then to sit back complacently and blame others by pointing an accusing finger. Guilt belongs too to the apathetic individual who has simply ignored every danger signal ever made. More important it belongs to the Nation as a whole for disobeying God’s Law. The Law which should be their wisdom in the sight of other nations, but which they have discarded in favour of the religion of the nations round about them.

“None Other Gods . . .”

At the time when Israel was formed by Almighty God the most important Warning of all was given to them — “Thou shalt have none other gods before me . . .” but as must be obvious it is a warning which has been dismissed as irrelevant. Not surprisingly too to such as Karl Marx, an alien to the Israel nation, this was considered as pure nonsense. However, many of his willing disciples have been Israelites and with Marx, have disdained to conceal their own aims believing — as did Satan — that they have a world to win — and control — according to their own determination. They too would be as ‘gods’ and would ascend above the stars of God.

As already noted, conspiracy and especially against Almighty God, is no new concept for going back even further than Communism, Socialism, or Democracy the worship of "... the ancient Serpent, the Creative Principle, the god of all initiates" was in existence. This was the worship practised by the earliest "political-religious" clique, "... through paganism to the pseudo-Christianity of the Gnostics and Cabalists ..." — and of today. It grew even stronger under the influence of the Hellenised Jews of Alexandria and out of this, Marx was able to conclude that man was his own creature and thus his own 'god', needing only to awaken to the god-like 'force' within himself.

According to the liberalistic concept of life such statements as "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven images... Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them... Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord Thy God in vain..." simply do not apply. All conduct is permissible and no one can say Thou Shalt Not — Man controls all things. Although naturally and inevitably, there have to be some who control even more! Indeed, it was Lenin who stated that all conditions must be made to conform, hence there must be a ruling hierarchy to see that conformity is there. Again, this is no new concept for according to many ancient records, the early Egyptian priests too believed in man's supremacy, but that everything and everyone was nevertheless subservient to the jurisdiction of the priests and the mystical 'secrets' of those ancient priests have been passed from generation to generation and are today, the basis upon which all political ideology and much of present day Christianity is built.

In his work Pagan Idolatry, Faber states that "As soon as the priests heard of a man whose genius, talents, and worth had gained consideration among the peoples, the Confederation used every possible means to attract and initiate them..." This tallying with Lenin's statement: "The only serious organisational principle the active workers of our movement can accept is strict secrecy, strict selection of members, and the training of professional revolutionaries." Thus, those who propagate the liberalistic concept propagate a religion. They believe that it is essential "... to make new beings of these men — (who are selected) — by means of slow gradual education, to render them even to the point of frenzy or death, obedient to invisible and Unknown Chiefs..." Who are the 'priests' and while those selected are permitted to develop their own 'god-like' ego, they must nevertheless acknowledge those (hidden ones) behind the scene — those of the chosen 'god-head'. Without question then the Conspiracy in two facets of its guise, Communism and Socialism, utterly denies Almighty God and their religion is 'government' — dictatorship over the masses of the world. Nor do they promise eternal life "... but eternal dictatorship over all the world — a world of people 'perfected' by Marxism. However, in yet another of its guises — Democracy — the conspiracy against God is equally active. All political ideology is a 'religion' and, claiming the attributes of Almighty God, the modern liberal priest, the politician and indeed all members of the conspiracy, no matter their particular brand of 'worship', see their real enemy in those who believe in the true and unadulterated Word of God. It is for this reason that they have done all in their power to destroy the Truth. Hence too the present Social Gospel which is Christianity today.

Thomas Jefferson Anderson, the well-known author, comments on a few ways in which the conspirators have managed to 'soften-up' present day Christianity: "By infiltrating the theological seminars, the universities and the church hierarchy — which they have done. The brainwashing has already progressed to the point that a high percentage of so-called 'Christian' pastors and priests don't believe in the Divinity of Christ. The 'gospel' they preach is do-goodism, peace, equality . . . this is . . . the social gospel . . . What these conspirators are really doing is making many of our clergy the servants of Hell on Earth" — drawing them ever deeper into the ancient religion of pagan worship.

Not surprisingly then it could be reported in February last year that while Radio Moscow was still quoting Andrew Young in support of his contention that there are 'many hundreds of political prisoners in the United States' the Communist rulers of the Soviet Union were hard at work using American religious organisations to undermine and subvert the United States.

The report continued: "It is a slow but steady business and justifies the continued toleration of Christian churches within the Soviet Union despite the Godless nature of communism.

"Members of American religious sects are frequently hosted around Moscow and meet Soviet citizens who tell them, quite accurately, that they are free to worship and that they are deeply concerned about world peace and seek a greater understanding between the peace loving peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States.

"What the American religious people do not know or care about or appreciate is that all this is being done in accordance with the teachings and tactics of Lenin who, although declaring that the denial of God was the cornerstone of communism, nevertheless, advocated that the communists 'march shoulder to shoulder with the religious to defeat the anti-revolutionaries'. In other words, the communists are using the churches in the Soviet Union as a weapon to reduce the resistance of churches outside the Soviet Union to the influences of communism."

It should also be noted and with regard the word 'peace' which is so glibly propounded today, as 1980 progressed it was obvious that the two political world leaders among the nations, America and the Soviet Union — although joined by the web of intrigue — were outwardly showing that it was very unlikely they could ever reach agreement as to which of them should become the high priest of the 'god of the universe'. The Soviets were maintaining that "U.S. hegemonism is not only presenting a threat to mankind . . . it is already a big obstacle in the way of the independent development of the world's countries . . . It is poisoning the atmosphere and is constantly helping to create new centres of military tension!" President Carter of America on the other hand bleated that: "The peace we enjoy is the peace of the strong" which raised the question as to which 'peace' he was referring to bearing in mind that the 'peace' being 'enjoyed' is based on the 'religion' of the conspirators. A religion which more recently helped to bring war to Afghanistan, saw 50 million Vietnamese 'united' in a single state under Socialism's banner, destroyed Rhodesia, encouraged genocide in such countries as Angola, Mozambique, Ethiopia and Iran with this particular country also warring with Iraq. It has also encouraged in every way possible the decline and fall of the West — all these countries 'sacrificed' to the 'gods'.

Swaying the Wind

In February 1980, the 'double Talk' reached new heights over the Olympic Games, scheduled to be held in Moscow. Now there was the threat of boycott with the U.S. President apparently determined on showing the Soviet leaders that they could not invade Afghanistan and hope to get away with it. Carter gave the impression that he was not all that fond of the 'god of sport' — which unfortunately is not the case when it comes to South Africans — however, not all Americans were agreeing with him. The President of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Robert J. Kane, stated: "We do have a problem to face if we're out there alone, swaying in the wind. If we are the only nation not to appear in the Games — forgotten apparently was South Africa and Nationalist China — what good would this do?" According to TIME magazine, Kane was asked about the 1936 Olympics, which had been cited as a propaganda triumph for Adolph Hitler that Soviet leadership was now seeking to emulate. Kane objected to such 'rewritten history' and contended: "Jessie Owen destroyed the myth of Aryan supremacy in 1936. It was a propaganda victory for our wonderful Black athletes in the United States" — propaganda which has gained momentum and not only in the sporting fields, since that time!

Of the Olympic intrigue Intelligence Digest remarked: "It is often assumed by non-English people that all English peers are sensible. This assumption is false, as many of our noble Lords are, to put not too fine a point to it, idiots. They are even more naive than President Carter who apparently needed the invasion of Afghanistan to convince him that the Soviet Union was a Marxist-based state dedicated to the Marxist concept of the inevitability of world revolution!" — or did he?

"The Olympic Committee was under the chairmanship of Lord Killanin who is not noted for his political acumen. In trying to keep sport above or out of politics, he was in reality, debasing it because he was trying to drive morality and humanity out of sport . . . Marxism is not just another interesting point of view, it is an all-consuming ideology and everything Marxists do is political, including playing games" — As South Africans should note! 'The Olympics have nothing to do with the freedom of expression.' Thus did Soviet General Loshkin, the Moscow Olympic security chief, give the official MVD view of the Olympic spirit, or to be more precise, what the Olympic spirit is not. The MVD is the internal arm of the security services which abroad are known as the KGB.

"General Loshkin had been touring Europe with his two deputies, both KGB colonels, and making it clear that 'keeping politics out of sport' in the opinion of his Ministry, means allowing only the comradely expression of Soviet-style 'socialism'. 'The urgent task is to prevent the games from being subjected to controversial demonstrations' said General Loshkin. He continued: 'Freedom of expression could lead to outbreaks of terrorism . . . inflammatory speeches or demonstrations that could lead to political disturbances would be crushed with the maximum force.' In other words, there was to be no Soviet equivalent of Jane Fonda demanding the withdrawal of the Red Army from Afghanistan or anywhere including Vietnam. Nor would anyone be allowed to complain about the Soviet Union's massive nuclear energy programme."

Meanwhile once again, all was not well in Communist ranks. The arrest and internal exile of Soviet physicist, Andrei Sakharov, for 'subversive activities'; for daring to speak out against his country's coup in Kabul and for calling on the United States and the U.S.S.R. to arrange for the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan was exciting a great deal of attention throughout the world. This was obviously too much for the Kremlin, especially when Sakharov also urged all nations to boycott the Olympic Games in Moscow. Although reluctant to arrest so famous a dissident for fear of "jeopardizing the advantages of detente, including trade with the United States" the Soviets decided to put Sakharov away. On the question of trade this was unnecessary as, except for Washington's punitive and very weak trade embargoes, no one else was prepared to do anything about the Soviet presence in Afghanistan anyway. A few Italian Communists did protest strongly, but in the main, Western Europe's Communist Parties meekly lined up behind Moscow declaring that Soviet troops in Afghanistan were 'peaceful' and most Western governments seemed to believe this as well. Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, then became a closed city as the Soviets continued to crush any sign of rebellion which surely made a mockery of their claim of helping a neighbour in need?

Then suddenly in March 1980, the "gods of the universe" actually called upon the Almighty to witness that President Carter had rejected the Israeli State! The Brooklyn Jewish Press immediately charged that it was because Carter needed oil. This was the occasion of the historic vote by the U.S.A. supporting the United Nations Security Council's Resolution which sharply criticised the Israeli State and demanded that this State stopped the practice of establishing new settlements in Arab lands occupied since 1967. Two days later Carter announced the vote had been a mistake and blamed the error on a "failure to communicate". Saudi Arabia's controlled radio then stated: "May God have mercy on his soul", followed by the Kuwait newspaper Al-Amba calling the President "a coward and a puppet in the hands of Israel".

This action by Carter was however no "communications error". It was merely the President bringing yet more deliberate disgrace on the American people as part of the plan to discredit their nation and its Constitution. Carter knew — as was obviously pointed out to him by his Trilateral One-World bosses — that by appearing to be nothing else than a clown, that by showing the American governmental system up as incompetent, he would do the Conspiracy a tremendous favour.

One American diplomat on learning of the vote against the Israeli State, actually stated: "We finally came out the closet on this one. Carter's got guts — he's putting the pressure on the Israelis" while later another diplomat charged: "The only reason he backed down was to lower the political heat." Obviously as this type of behaviour by a world leader shows, the real rulers in Washington sometimes do feel obliged to make assuring noises. It all helps to confuse the issue for if alarms and excursions are necessary, they will be created. On the other hand, whether Carter tried to buck his Wall Street bosses, will never be known, but what is known and admitted, is that Carter feared, with good reason, the political repercussions among American Jewish voters. Later, he was to lose the Presidency. Thus is the 'religion' of the Conspiracy served and the 'gods' appeased.

A Day of Rest — and Finance

Every Sunday morning some 68 million people in America and many millions more in other Western countries attend a Protestant Church, or feel guilty about staying at home. Most of them have voluntarily signed their names to church rolls and so, according to Jerald Huntsinger in his article The Consumer Markets: The Protestants, these people have qualified themselves as prospects for Protestant products and appeals to be made by way of the direct-mailing system — which is Big Business in America.

Because of his own personal experience as a theological graduate Huntsinger feels he is qualified to talk on this subject. He admits that one of the most difficult problems in 'religious direct-mailing' is that most of the decisions are made by ministers or dedicated laymen although their experience in selling theology is often greater than their knowledge of market place. So the question then is how do you reach the Protestants? What products will they buy? What appeals will they respond to? How are they different from other people — or are they? Jerry Huntsinger states that . . .

"The major problem in reaching the Protestant market is the fact that Protestants have never been able to get together and agree upon exactly what they believe about Christianity. These differences have led to persecution, witch-hunting, wars, tedious oratorical debates, and a never ending supply of jokes about what the Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Lutherans, will do if they all go to the same heaven . . .

"A way of defining the market — and the easiest for non-theologians — is by theological classification. Of course, the following categories are over simplifications, but it would take a seminary library to list and define every American Protestant viewpoint.

"Starting on the far right you have the fundamentalists, who believe in the verbal inspiration of the Bible, and hold to basic historical beliefs they consider 'fundamental' to their faith.

"Next come the conservatives, who actually believe much the same as the fundamentalists, but are a bit more modern in outlook, and more ready to accept contemporary life.

"Finally come the liberals, the largest and least religious group . . .

"As a general rule, Protestants belonging to the major denominations are liberal and smaller denominations are conservative or fundamentalists. Liberals belong to the National Council of Churches, conservatives to the National Association of Evangelicals.

"Conservatives have a higher per capita 'giving' record than liberals, receive more appeals, and are on more mailing lists. Liberals are harder to reach because they usually exist only horizontally in lists. They have a higher income than the conservatives, are more concerned about social causes than evangelism. Liberal women, age forty and over, make excellent donors, because their names do not appear on so many lists. They have more money to spend on mail order items than conservative women their age.

"While the fragmentation makes blanket coverage of the entire market difficult, the different theological concepts create a series of targets that are easily definable.

"The secret here is to watch your language! Differences between denominations are largely those of definitions and words. Each group has a particular set of doctrines and if your copy uses the key doctrinal words, you will gain the confidence of the readers."

"Perhaps", says Jerald Huntsinger, "The best way for you to understand their beliefs is by attending church services in congregations that represent the market segment you are aiming at. Notice the key words used by the minister. And notice the emotional reaction of the people. Incorporate such words and phrases in your copy. I underline emotion, because this is the common denominator in the Protestant market". Huntsinger then admits that Protestant direct-mail has never really fully come of age. Salaries are low and advancement opportunities slim, although it is still Big Business. Sadly to him, however, many Protestant leaders are still suspicious, both of products and fund-raising. "They don't want to admit selling steaks and selling religion by mail involves the same techniques!"

However amusing the above comment may be, there can be little doubt that many methods — other than direct mailing lists — have been used to coerce the Israel nation into buying the religion of the Conspiracy. A religion now found within the teaching of the Social Gospel based on Judaic-Christian beliefs. And the secret of all religion is that it is political — or — politics is a religion as shown in 1893 when it was stated that: "The only power that can make socialism succeed, if it is established, is religion. It cannot work in an irreligious country." From that time on through the control of many religious organisations, magazines, literature, the thinking of millions of people in the Western World have been turned towards the socialistic — religious concept of life and "Communist tactics of infiltration, subversion, bribery, lies, bluff, brutality, treason and murder are played down or ignored . . . for in all 'Religions' the sacrifice must be made.

Meanwhile, inflation continued to grip the Western world during 1980 and was compared to a mysterious, debilitating fever and indeed, the world's afflicted economies were suffering from shaking chills and persistent weakness — a steady break-down and exhaustion which can be compared to the frenzied exhausting dance before the molten calf, the 'graven images' of the priesthood. Throughout the year and, day by day, Western financial and commodity markets reacted to grim developments with exaggerated tremors characteristic of a hyperinflationary ballet and still there was no thought of rest or rejection. Instead all governments believed that if they could manoeuvre to balance budgets for just one year, this would help to bring down the inflationary fever. Obviously time was running out as shudders in the financial markets were making all too apparent. What must not be overlooked however is that runaway inflation destroys confidence in the free enterprise system and in truly representative government for as John A. Stormer remarks: "The resulting 'national emergency' could be used as justification for abolishing the constitutional processes and establishing a totalitarian socialist government and anyone — who might be expected to oppose such a takeover — would have no resources to finance opposition. Their savings would be confiscated by runaway inflation. Fantastic? Part of a plan? Do the pieces fit the 'blue-print'? Whether part of a plan or not, the events are developing, the trend is established." In Saturday Evening Post some years ago, it was revealed as to how inflation had been the key weapon in the communization of China. "When Red Armies entered Shanghai, they were openly greeted by the Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce in the belief that they could not possibly be more dangerous to business interests than Chiang's inflation had been. Those Americans, like their Chinese counterparts, soon discovered how wrong they were. But then it was too late.

"The inflation which discredited Chiang Kai-shek's government was planned in Washington by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Harry Dexter White (CFR) a known communist and implemented in China by the Treasury Department's representative, Solomon Adler, who was also a communist agent.

"A similar pattern was established in Bolivia. When the revolutionary MNR group seized power in 1952, a systematic program of runaway inflation was implemented. The free market rate of exchange on the Bolivian peso for the dollar stood at 190 on the day of the revolution. Four years later, the exchange rate was 15 000 pesos for one dollar. The Bolivian citizen who had pesos worth $10 000 on the day of the revolution had buying power of only $125 four years later. The Minister of Foreign Affairs of the revolutionary MNR government as much as admitted that the inflation was planned to destroy political opposition."

This lesson of Bolivia and of other countries should have stood as a warning. Not only could it happen to the Western world — it is happening and will take the 'free' nations to the very brink of disaster which is exactly where the Conspiracy wants them. Yet tragically, the Anglo-Saxon people of the West will not heed and will not rest from their endless worship of the 'gods' of Babylon.

The Sabbath day of rest is a question continually argued over in Christian circles; whether it should be Saturday or Sunday, but what is always overlooked is the Sabbath year of rest which, if put into operation would destroy every single 'graven image' of finance. However, today in the Western nations where true Israel is found, it is business as usual no matter the day. Financial matters must never be ignored. Even if their doors are closed on a Sunday the large financial houses and banks continue to operate. It is all resolved around usury, the high rate of interest, how high the profit margin can become.

Big Business has never been concerned with national matters and does not care whether there is a Sabbath or not. Money is their 'god' and here too no sacrifice is too high a price to pay, especially if they are not personally offered on the altar in the temple of the priests. As Antony C. Sutton states in The War On Gold: "A business man doesn't care what was sold in 1926 or 1956 or what will be sold in 1986. The government official should care, but he is subject to political influences, and no government official is going to fight. Business and government are concerned with single sales — and profits — whereas realistic analysis should concern the total picture of single sales over fifty years. When you examine this picture it is obvious that we in effect create not only our own strategic and defence problems, but also provide a motivation for revolutionaries and subversives to be revolutionaries and subversives." Realistic analysis in a 'Christian' nation should be concerned as well with the violence done by finance to the keeping of God's Holy Law.

Today of course, among the most enthusiastic supporters of the political ideology are those Western businessmen who because of their lust for wealth and power, "...give credibility to the Soviet system through technical transfers. These are the same businessmen who indirectly provide an image of credibility for socialist systems and so give birth to revolutionaries. In brief the revolutionaries and subverters exist only through the support of businessmen, and it is ironic that some of these businessmen, are often in the forefront of demanding action against the same revolutionaries and subverters they have themselves created . . . We are on the edge of a financial precipice which will bring down the financial structure of the Western world. Or, to change the metaphor, our big balloon of debt and fiat money is poised to come crashing down on our heads. When it does ('when', not 'if'), we can expect social and economic chaos. This chaos will make our Western society an easy victim for the Marxists, the revolutionaries, the subversives, and their friends.

"In considering our future survival, two inter-related elements can be identified: (1) the technical and financial subsidy of the Soviet Union which provides an unworkable and hostile system with the illusion of success, and so encourages the revolutionaries and subversives; and (2) an on-going crisis of a collapsing world financial system which ultimately will create chaos, an essential prerequisite for successful revolution and the overthrow of capitalist society.

"If we assume that businessmen wish to live in a Free Enterprise system, that they cherish their country and its enterprise traditions, then basic policies have to be adopted. These are fundamentally new policies. The trend of the last fifty years has brought us to the brink of disaster, and new policies are wholly opposed to, and inconsistent with, this trend. They are wholly opposed to the one world approach."

Antony Sutton then recommended certain policies: "(1) Neutralising the widespread illusion that socialist societies have any technical and economic viability, that socialism can in any way be successful without Western help. This is an educational task. It cannot be done by legislation or by government decree. The task has to be undertaken by private organisations and private individuals.

"(2) Adopting a world financial system based on the ultimate discipline of gold. Preferably a pure gold standard, but any international system based on gold would restore confidence in currency. This is a political task." However, there is a far better financial system laid out, but which unfortunately, has never been adopted.

In the Constitution given to true Israel at Sinai — which Constitution is still applicable today — there was guaranteed safety for all — a freehold land inheritance and an economic system which provided for every need. "And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all the nations of the earth . . . And the Lord shall make thee be the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them." Naturally, being the 'head' and not the 'tail' was conditional upon absolute obedience to all the Commandments of the Lord and it should be noted that the Economic Law of the Lord communicated by Moses, only failed because the nation permitted "strangers" to handle the nation's economy. These people, not permitted to participate in the Law, naturally worked for the abolition of God's Legislation and corrupted the system of economics which had in no way made provision for them. Under the Law of the Lord, while money was to be used and gold was valuable, all transactions were made in silver, the value of which was determined by a just weight. Inflation could never happen either for the volume of money in circulation was entirely dependent on agriculture and industry — the productivity of the people themselves. However, the strict demands that all transactions should conform to specific rules laid down by God were disobeyed and ignored bringing the nation to its present plight and, allowing for the worship of gold upon which 'religion' all financial matters are based today.

Western Double Standards

Meanwhile to return to 1980, the plight of Poland was receiving a great deal of attention with the British press unanimous in its sympathy for the brave Polish trade unionists in their struggle for greater freedom and better standard of living. The Daily Telegraph too expressed support for this struggle, but as A.M. Wade reveals in his most interesting study of the situation: "... there is more to all this than meets the eye." As Mr. Wade states: "On the financial page of Daily Telegraph 20/8/80, the other side of the coin was shown. It was reported that Western bankers were creditors of Poland to the tune of $19 400 million at the end of 1979, on which, interest charges would amount in 1980, to $2 000 million. Repayments of principal during 1980 added up to $5 242 million.

"In the 1970s we are told that Poland, under the Polish leader, Edward Gierk, authorised the policy of borrowing heavily from Western banks in order to modernise their plants and raise their standards of living. But things did not work out as expected. A further $500 million was sought by the Polish government. Banks were not enthusiastic about lending more, but a loan of $325 million was agreed to in London on the 22nd August 1980. The economy had to be run so that interest could be paid on the huge loans in hard currency. The Polish government had agreed to undertake that 500 million pounds worth of goods manufactured by Polish industry would be sold in export markets rather than on the home market.

“One way and another, including higher prices, consumers were to be squeezed in order to protect the balance of payments. What may happen now is that concessions made to the strikers will weaken Poland’s balance of payments. Then the country would face acute problems in dealing with its foreign debt. If that comes to pass, it is unlikely that Poland would follow the recent examples of Turkey and Zaire. Those countries told their creditors that they could not meet their obligation and asked for a rearrangement of their debts. Instead, Poland could turn to Russia.

“Monetary reformers will not be surprised to learn that there is another case of banking policy bearing unreasonably hard on friends and neighbours, actually supporting and enforcing the very policies which, in the political context, we profess to deplore.

“No doubt the loan to Poland commencing in the 1970s was regarded as a good neighbour policy.

How sound it was to aid the Polish economy and perhaps weaken the hold of Russia over that proud country! For many years Western governments have taken pride in assisting the under-developed nations with loans as a duty. The rich must help the poor! Apparently Russia has only been willing to supply arms whereas ‘we’ have given loans to assist their economies.

“However, before taking too much pride in this generosity, it would do well to enquire whether in fact loans are based on the exercise of love to one’s neighbour. One notable authority on the subject of foreign loans has declared: ‘Foreign loans are leeches . . .’ The borrowing State is obliged to undertake to repay principal and interest in the currency of the creditor. If the loan is at 10 percent, for 10 years, the interest alone will exceed the principal. How then can repayment be made? To attempt to meet these obligations intense pressure must be applied to the economy by means of low wages, long hours, high taxation, and concentration on exports. Even then, as all recent history has proved, it is impossible to satisfy the wishes of creditors, because it would be a physical impossibility.

“As stated in the Telegraph, the Polish government agreed to exert pressure on the export of 500 million pounds worth of goods, rather than allow them to go to the home market. It is therefore hypocritical to put the blame on the Polish government. Pressure came from the Western banks to comply with the banking requirements of what must be argued to be a fundamentally ill-conceived accountancy system.

“This high-lights the whole policy of national and international banking as practised in the West and demonstrates that it is neither reasonable nor practicable in that it demands the impossible. By its demand for interest (and at this time for shockingly high interest rates) it exhibits a growing desire to exploit its monopoly power over the issue of money which it presumably gained by stealth in the beginning — for no self-respecting government would have surrendered its power and prerogative of the creation and issue of money to a private company to which it would be obligated in perpetuity for the vast sums of money to be issued in the future, and pay that company interest compounded at a geometrically rising rate, and grant a lien on nation wealth.

“While a person may borrow a loan and repay with interest, it is not possible for the nation to repay with interest, after it has abandoned its right to create money. The Law holds back from pressing for action which is impossible. Hence it does not convict for non-payment of interest, but for contempt of court; a useful legal fiction! The catch is that the debt is in money, and not in money's worth. Money cannot grow, hence the banks cannot receive back more than they have lent out. The result therefore is either a debt for the unpaid interest, or the surrender of the collateral security which the bank would hold.

"To repeat, because this is what economists carefully avoid, the present system of finance by bank credit is illogical, unethical, and counter-productive in a national sense, although immensely profitable to the banks. It weaves a web of unpayable debt around the Government and nationalised industries, and local authorities, and in fact round all industry.

"The centralising of banking, seen in the International Monetary Fund, and World Bank, extends the same system of debt creation to all countries, converting loans for the help of poorer countries into burdens of intolerable debt after the honeymoon period granted before payments are expected. Hence it is an inevitable consequence that the poor become poorer, and the rich, richer.

"In the so-called Christian world hands are wrung about this deplorable situation and conference after conference is held to explore the problem and seek a solution — which is always more loans, and more prayers, but never an unprejudiced examination of the inherent folly of the present credit system.

"Another very important aspect of this long established system of foreign loans is the practice of applying pressure on recalcitrant debtors. Gunboat diplomacy was the name for it during the last century, but times have changed. Many nations are now in the arms business, so that ever bigger armaments are needed to apply pressure, and also to resist pressure, all making good trade. Now there is pressure on Poland by Western banks to pay debts which could drive her back into Russian hands. Poland cannot satisfy both banks and her workers. Failure to satisfy workers could lead to Russian intervention and to world war.

"Meanwhile, Russia itself has been assisted with vast services by the West in terms of factory construction and technical know-how. Russian indebtedness has been stated to be around 26 000 million pounds — all good interest-bearing debt for Western banks. But whereas normally, the debtor is in an inferior position to the creditor, and lives in fear of him to some extent, the tables appear to have turned between Russia and the U.S.A. So powerful has the American client become that he is 'the greatest' and knows it. Hence, the banking system has not been all that clever — or has it? Would it not be expedient, and belatedly wise to call a halt to all pressures for payment of debt and examine the whole system of national and then international finance? In plain English, cease all creation of new money by private interests, and transfer that right to truly elected governments accountable to the people."

However, as the 'religion' of the conspiracy is entirely corrupt in all financial matters, it is hardly likely to encourage 'elected governments accountable to the people' into breaking away from their own world financial system. Thus, when it is argued as to which day — Saturday or Sunday — should be remembered, it should be recalled that not only is the infamous hierarchy manipulating events so as to provide no day of rest whatsoever, it is also closing every avenue of escape.

There is an answer of course — a full and complete return to the Law of the Lord which alone is able to meet the needs of the nation for in the Law and as already noted there are stringent prohibitions against acquiring wealth through anything else than one's own initiative, production, inheritance or a gift. No one is able to make capital out of a fellow Israelite who might have fallen on hard times for in the Law it is clearly stated: "If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury. If thou at all take thy neighbour's raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down. For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep?" (Ex. 22:25-27). "And if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger (Heb: ger, legal guest), or a sojourner; that he may live with thee. Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee. Thou shalt not give thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase" (Lev. 25:35-37).

Where Honour is Due

The deliberate destruction of the Western nations especially those of true Israel has not only been through financial manipulation, although 'finance' has been the connecting link in every activity, but the destruction goes further. One cannot ignore the motives behind such movements as the emancipation of women through the Women's Liberation Movement. Nor should the emasculation of the males and the tactics to feminise them be dismissed as of no importance. All these are part of the same conspiracy of purpose. To destroy any opposition which might arise so that out of the ashes the New Man — the materialistic controlled creature — may arise.

Long term plans for world conquest were started among the children. They were to be a part of the sacrifice to the 'gods' and so had to be encouraged to turn on their parents in animosity and rebellion — to withdraw completely in readiness for the part they would play in the religious climax. So every aspect affecting these youngsters has been diabolically manipulated. Thus the revolution of youth was thrust to the fore, but what has been behind this was that their inheritance and they themselves should be destroyed. At no time and in no way should the children ever be able to: "Remember the Times everlasting, Reflect on the ages of years, Ask your father, who will inform you, your elders, and they will relate, How the highest allotted the races, when He divided the sons of Man, Fixing the bounds of the nations, With a place for Israel's sons" (Deut. 32:7-8. F.F.T.).

This Song of Moses covers the entire aspect of the plans of those who, with their master — Lucifer — seek to control the whole world. Now the past must be forgotten. Man is the creature only of today and belongs only to himself — and the State of course — being his own 'god'! Neither his father nor his elders have any say over him, he is of the community, of no race nor division of race for all are equally 'gods'. National boundaries and patriotism do not exist. No place belongs to one race for there is no God to set such bounds and behind it all is the 'financial' picture which demands trade at all costs for those who worship the golden calf.

In 1946 the Rockefeller Foundation stated the goal: "The challenge of the future is to make this world one world — a world truly free to engage in common and constructive intellectual efforts that will serve the welfare of mankind everywhere." Place this alongside the statement: "The people who have been taught to believe whatever they are told by their parents and their teachers are the people who are the menace to the world". Thus for the rare person who escapes indoctrination in the 'new social order' in progressive schools; those who reject 'theology' which teaches that socialism is the new 'Kingdom of God on Earth'; for all who hold concepts of right and wrong and are vocal about it, "the collectivists have one final, ultimate weapon. Declare them insane!"

"Fantastic? Not at all... The 'new leaders' ... purpose to re-educate the world's population using psychological procedures to create a new breed of immoral men who accept a one-world socialistic government..." And if they won't be educated, the answer is either imprisonment, enslavement or death.

"Ask your father, who will inform you, your elders and they will relate..." and now today, as a well known Rhodesian has written, it is "Forget Rhodesia and Perish!" Do not remember the past. Do not remember how the Most High fixed the bounds of the nation — with a place for Israel's sons. Can it be doubted then that if ever there was a land which has been forced to forget — it is Rhodesia and — if in turn the Western world continues to forget as well — it too will surely perish for: "Behold you trust in lying words, that cannot profit..." (Jer. 7:8).

According to Zimbabwe's Prime Minister Mugabe "The vanquished must sincerely accept his defeat if reconciliation is to be realised". Yet should Rhodesians accept 'defeat' which was not a military defeat, but entirely due to the treachery of people of its own race? Kinsmen who having refused to hear the voice of the Lord their God, lent themselves instead to the 'reconciliation' which Mugabe — a 'stranger' if ever there was one — dared to offer to the Rhodesians in their own land! Here surely are 'lying words' indeed!

Now sadly, as the above article states: "... among the tragedies of a struggle in which no courage could avail are young men who have known nothing but war: fine upstanding youngsters who fought heroically for a civilised country while their companions fell and their loved ones were massacred. Today you may find some of them knocking back pint after pint of beer and talking of killing 'kaffirs'. Moral wrecks, as their disabled friends are physical wrecks. Do the Carringtons and Thatchers and the State Department officials ever think of these? One day they will have to. Do the traitors in our midst think of them? Those who thrive still because they betrayed us all? And what of the vociferous South African churchman who announces that the Kingdom of God has come to Zimbabwe?" What indeed?

The people of Rhodesia have been sacrificed on the altar of political religion and not only has Communism demanded this, but Democracy has as well. But Britain too is on the waiting list as is South West Africa with South Africa to follow and surely, as the present plight of true Israel in Anglo-Saxondom is reviewed it is not surprising that the Almighty exclaims: "O that there was such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them and with their children for ever!"?

Many people believe that in the case of Rhodesia, this country will never be rebuilt especially if the rest of Southern Africa goes the same way. And indeed it would seem that the same words which the Lord spoke against Judah of old through Jeremiah the prophet now apply to this situation: "Hear, O earth: behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts, because they have not hearkened unto my words, nor to my law, but rejected it. To what purpose cometh there to me incense from Sheba, and the sweet cane from a far country? Your burnt offerings are not acceptable, nor your sacrifices sweet unto me. Therefore thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will lay stumbling-blocks before this people, and the fathers and the sons together shall fall upon them; the neighbour and his friend shall perish. Thus saith the Lord, Behold, a people cometh from the north country, and a great nation shall be raised from the sides of the earth. They shall lay hold on bow and spear; they are cruel, and have no mercy; their voice roareth like the sea; . . . We have heard the fame thereof: our hands wax feeble: anguish hath taken hold of us, and pain, as of a woman in travail . . ."

And it is not only in Rhodesia but within all the Israel lands that the parents of today have shown themselves as undeserving of God's Mercy for they have followed after 'strange gods'. The injunction to "Honour thy father and thy mother . . ." dismissed and discredited through the greater failure — to love the Lord their God, with all their heart and to love in obedience to His Will.

Following on the words above spoken by the Lord through Jeremiah to Judah of old are words which could apply to Rhodesia — and all Southern Africa — today. "Go not forth into the field, nor walk by the way; for the sword of the enemy and fear is on every side. O daughter of my people, gird thee with sackcloth, and wallow thyself in ashes: make thee mourning, as for an only son, most bitter lamentation: for the spoiler shall suddenly come upon us."

Then the Almighty states: "I have set thee for a tower and a fortress among my people, that thou mayest know and try their way. They are all grievous revolters, walking with slanders: they are brass and iron; they are all corrupters. The bellows are burned, the land is consumed of the fire; the founder melteth in vain: for the wicked are not plucked away. Reprobate silver shall men call them, because the Lord hath rejected them."

One should not of course take Scripture out of context for the above words did apply to the tribe of Judah many years ago, but there is no doubt they could apply too to the situation within Southern Africa today and with them those other tremendous words of Almighty God: "From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering." This will be God's Offering and not a sacrifice and so can only be within the scope of His Law.

The Lord's statement concerns a people — ONE PEOPLE — not Rhodesians or South Africans only — but one 'daughter' of the dispersed — which is Israel for only Israel was dispersed and dispersed for disobedience. And these people are found on the Southern side of the rivers of Ethiopia — of ancient Ethiopia which ended in a water line separating the southern tip from the rest of Africa — and — what cannot be denied is that the Lord stated they — "shall bring mine offering".

A Soviet leader once stood on the north bank of the Zambesi and promised that the lands to the south would be 'liberated'. Here was a 'priest' of the new political 'religion' daring to 'prophesy' concerning a remnant of the people of God who, although they had failed to keep His Law, were not lost to Him — and never will be either.

During last year with manipulated election results in Rhodesia, with the trouble still in that country, with the growing disease of socialism and the evil of Western politicians, it was all too easy to believe that the conspiracy against God had had its way. However, this is not the final picture. A declared Marxist may now be ruling over a portion of Israel land, South African leaders may be submerging South Africa into a multi-racial, majority — rule — society, yet none of this can ever succeed for He Who brought our nation out of Egypt made promise to our fathers — which fathers we need to honour once more — "... for our good always, that He might preserve us alive . . ."

Why Will Ye Die . . . ?

By October 1980, South Africans were surely aware that this country too was on the road of no return. That their leaders were no longer honouring their own parents or considering the heritage which had been won for them. The South African magazine To The Point was stating in September 1980, that a new order had come to South Africa. A new dispensation "as different in its political, social and economic aspects from the Verwoerdian era of the past two decades, as that was from the race "baasskap" — (superiority) — that preceded it. This is what Prime Minister P.W. Botha and his new team of ministers — and the host of academic and business advisers he has co-opted into his administration — have in mind for the country.

"Typically, Botha chose the Transvaal congress of the National Party for setting them out. The stage was set for a conservative resurgence in the party, led by this crucial congress representing half South Africa's active Nationalists. Transvaal leader Andries Treurnicht had set the tone in a rash of public pronouncements and the congress agenda followed up with barely disguised 'planted' resolutions directing Botha to reaffirm traditional policies of rigid separatism.

"Botha accepted the challenge. Far from diluting his message he stated it more forcefully and in greater detail than he has done on any previous occasion. And he invited the party to get rid of him if it disagreed.

"Which leaves the ball firmly in the court of Treurnicht and the rightist group that has been balking at his reforms. Like retiring minister Braam Raubenheimer, who told the congress it was 'a little difficult to tolerate' that Treurnicht did not have 'the last say' in national affairs . . ."

Meanwhile, "The colour bar has now been scrapped (after the Wiehahn report) with its implications for the redistribution of wealth and the incorporation of Blacks in the private enterprise system fully accepted. The fostering of an all-inclusive 'stable' middle class drawn from all groups appears to be a primary objective of government. And the new alliance between government and private enterprise since Botha became prime minister must be seen in this context.

"It is in the economic sphere that the future is taking shape most rapidly. That is where change is most urgent and, just as important, it is a sphere in which White adjustment and preparation for more explicitly political changes can be most easily made . . ." And Botha continues to state "Adapt or Die"!

Here then is a leader determined on 'killing' the White race in this country for there is more than one way of breaking the Commandment — "Thou Shalt Not Kill!” The word ‘kill’ taken from the Hebrew ratsba — to murder or, to plan to kill. What then of leaders who are determined on murdering their own racial seed by advocating and permitting the admixture of foreign ‘seeds’ into the nation and in the name of finance? What of religious leaders as found in such as the Anglican Diocese of Cape Town who supported the statement “Men and women are created in God’s image. This legislation (Immorality and Prohibition of Mixed Marriages Acts) is an affront to God as Creator”? Here it is that the Command — THOU SHALT NOT KILL — is linked to the — NEITHER SHALT THOU COMMIT ADULTERY — NEITHER SHALT THOU STEAL, or, in other words — “You will honour your father and your mother by keeping the heritage of your race intact. You will in no way ‘kill’ off your own genetic inheritance but will hand it on to your children clean and unadulterated by the seed of those who are ‘strangers’ to your race. You will not steal or take away the purity of race from your children for then they will be unable to enter the congregation of the Lord even to their tenth generation — being dead in the Sight of the Almighty!”

It is surely not for nothing that the Almighty levels the charge as found in Jeremiah 7 that His people believe in lying words which can only bring disaster and He proclaims: “Will ye steal, murder, and commit adultery and swear falsely, and burn incense unto Baal, and walk after other gods whom ye know not; And come and stand before me in this house, which is called by my name, and say, We are delivered to do all these abominations? Is this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, even I have seen it, saith the Lord.”

Will you bear false witness — ‘swear falsely’ against your neighbour when he advocates that the race must be kept pure at all costs? A fact which the British government should remember too as they continue to act against those who object to the many aliens in Britain.

In a speech during 1980 reaffirming the British Government’s commitment to better community relations, Home Secretary William Whitelaw, spoke of a number of current problems and outlined his thinking on how they should be tackled.

“In recent weeks,” the Home Secretary said, “I have read comments which have tried to cast doubts on the full commitment of this Government to the good race relations which are fundamental to the success of our British society. I wish to take this opportunity totally to repudiate those remarks.

“At the same time, in the interests of the whole nation, and in particular to remove unjustified fears stirred up amongst ethnic minority groups, I wish to reaffirm the complete commitment of our Conservative Government to a society in which all individuals, whatever their race, colour or creed, have equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities.

“It would be premature to imply that we have already arrived at a racially just society. There is still a long road ahead of us. But we must not belittle the progress we have already made, particularly the progress which the ethnic minorities have achieved by their own efforts."

Constellation summit: prelude to confederation

Here adultery was surely advocated while the 'progress' mentioned was obviously news to many Britons as they viewed the areas where these minorities stay. Areas which are filled with aliens unwilling and unable to be assimilated into British society. Their customs, habits, culture and loyalties still belonging to their race and the lands from where they originated. America cannot be left out of the 'alien' invasion picture either for as reported in Spearhead there are now the Cubans. Thousands of them swarming ashore, the noise of their 'awful' language plus the arrogance of Cubans already in the States. Many Americans believe that the Key West where most of the Cubans arrived last year has become almost the visual end of their world. Already filled with queers and hippies the Cubans have helped to accomplish the final, most sardonic 'joke'. The Cuban insanity down in the harbour was the maypole around which other insanities revolved. No nuance of symbolism could be lost. Key West is America's southern-most town, the physical end of the United States. Was it an accident that it all happened here? To say that, is so obvious, it is almost in bad taste. It is not only the number of Cubans, it is the way it happened. This was so novel, the first time so-called refugees have stormed ashore so sure and arrogant in their assumption of the right to invade. The cold, antlike invading conqueror aspect of this assault had to be seen as entirely novel, as something which had never happened before, but which will happen again. And again, and again. A line has been crossed.

Neither Shalt Thou . . .

As the year drew to an end the 'mysterious' power to mould public opinion, decide their attitudes and convince the intellectuals in all walks of life became more and more rampant. It was obvious that all civilised values had to be shattered at all costs for only about four years — to 1984 — remained! At no time did any leader within Anglo-Saxondom — political or religious — sound a call to the people to remind them that: "Behold, the Lord our God hath shewed us his glory and his greatness and we have heard his voice out of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and he liveth . . . Ye shall observe to do therefore as the Lord our God hath commanded you . . ."

No call for repentance came, no cry that "Neither shalt thou bear false witness against your neighbour . . ." instead the scene was set for the elections which brought Ronald Reagan to power. Here was all the in-fighting, the debates, the lies, the broken promises. Here in truth was an affront to Almighty God which should never have been allowed to happen as almost half the American people showed by not voting. A 'false witness' is surely in reports proclaiming the President-elect to be conservative when every past action has been liberal as now confirmed by his links with Henry Kissinger and Vice-President George Bush, known to be Tri-lateralists and so part of the Conspiracy. Unquestionably the American system of selecting a President, like every other Western political system — leaves much to be desired. When Carter was elected what was not appreciated was that he had no clear ideas of his own. Thus Time magazine could state: "When we (America) get around to improving this inadequate system for electing Presidents, some serious thought must be devoted to changing the public presentation of the candidates so that actors do not view the presidency as just another stage and Presidents understand that there is more to the job than acting." Here again was the subtle hint that the American Constitution must be changed so that finally, the entire Western World will be controlled.

During 1980 the disintegration of the basic tenets upon which the nation Israel should be established thus accelerated at an alarming pace.

Heaving to : Cuban exiles of all ages jam an arriving shrimp boat to the gunwales as it docks in Key West.

The break-up of marriage and the continued demand for 'sexual freedom' increasing as the licence to indulge one's every whim was demanded. And unquestionably too, the present political ideology is based on covetousness. The desire to have what belongs to another: whether this is another country, another possession or someone's wife. Figuratively, the 'serpent' is the symbol of envy, jealousy, malice and greed and has only one aim — to awaken the 'sex-force' in the 'god' which it proclaims as being within man. And to awaken in order to destroy! Tragically, the Israel 'man' cannot see this for this is a 'religion' which appeals to every unsavoury element within human nature.

So 1980 came to an end. It was a year which saw "... a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation . . ." — and the end is not yet for the cry of liberty, equality and fraternity in the name of the ancient political-religion will yet reach new heights. The promise has been made of a new heaven on earth under the financial 'god' of the Conspiracy. This is the 'secret' of religion — the worship of the molten calf of gold.

Is there an answer? Unquestionably there is and in order to find this answer:

"Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the Lord your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he had commanded thee.

"And thou shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the Lord: that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers.

"To cast out thine enemies from before thee, as the Lord hath spoken.

"And when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you?

"Then thou shalt say unto thy son, We were Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt; and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand;

"And the Lord shewed signs and wonders, great and sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his house-hold before our eyes:

"And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers.

"And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive, as it is at this day.

"And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the Lord our God, as he hath commanded us."

A PRAYER FOR THE MONTH

O our Father, Who art ever the same, grant that we may journey through this New Year ever mindful of our need of Thee. Help us to please Thee in all things through obedience to Thy Law. Give us a vision of true understanding so that we, Thy People, may become worthy to take our place within the framework of Thy Kingdom.

And as the year passes, O Father, and as the darkness deepens, open our eyes to Thy Presence so that we may not turn away from Thee. So fit us to serve Thee faithfully that all fear will be removed and we will see only that Light which is Jesus our Lord.

Amen.
